

Procedure: 103.00

Subject: Optional Personal Coverage and Householder Coverage

103.01 Introduction

WorkplaceNL offers two types of optional coverage for individuals who are not required to register under the Workplace Health, Safety and Compensation Act, 2022 (the Act): optional personal coverage (OPC) and householder coverage.

103.02 Optional Personal Coverage

Proprietors and partners of non-incorporated businesses and independent operators are not mandatorily covered under the Act. However, they may voluntarily apply for and obtain optional personal coverage in accordance with the terms and conditions of WorkplaceNL.

Applicants should complete the Optional Personal Coverage Application form (available on www.workplaceni.ca) in full and submit it with the appropriate payment to WorkplaceNL. In addition, a determination regarding the applicant's status as a worker, employer or independent operator may also be required. Please refer to Procedure 101.00, Coverage under the Act and Procedure 102.00, Independent Operator Determination.

Terms of Coverage

The following terms and conditions apply to an application submitted to WorkplaceNL for optional personal coverage:

- Premiums for the period of coverage must be paid in full at the time of application or paid according to an agreed deferred payment arrangement (see Policy ES-04 Deferred Payment of Assessments).
- There is a $50 non-refundable minimum assessment charge.
- The maximum coverage purchased cannot exceed the maximum compensable and assessable earnings specified by the Act. Annual maximum compensable and assessable earnings can be found on WorkplaceNL's website at workplaceni.ca.
- Coverage is in effect from the date receipt of the application, payment and approval by WorkplaceNL, or from the coverage date requested in the application, whichever is later.
- The minimum period of coverage that may be purchased is 28 days.

- The maximum period of coverage is one calendar year, which is January 1 to December 31.
- Coverage automatically expires on December 31 of each year, or on the date specified in the application, whichever is earlier.
- Coverage may also be cancelled in writing by the applicant or by WorkplaceNL at any time.

The general practice is that a cancellation will not be backdated prior to, if applicable, the originally requested date for cancellation. However, consideration may be given where there is reason to believe that the individual was no longer working. Requests for backdating cancellation must be made in writing and information to substantiate the cancellation must accompany the request. Cancellations of coverage will not be backdated such that the period of coverage would be less than the minimum coverage period of 28 days.

For individuals whose coverage automatically expires on December 31, WorkplaceNL will send a renewal form to them prior to the expiry. If the individual would like to renew the OPC they must complete the form and return it with the appropriate payment to WorkplaceNL.

Proof of earnings must be submitted with a claim for lost-time benefits. Benefits will be based on the actual amount of earnings loss, but in no case will exceed the amount of coverage requested or the maximum compensable and assessable earnings specified by the Act.

Multiple Business Activities

When an individual operates more than one business entity, their OPC is not transferable from one business to the other. If coverage is required for more than one business activity, the applicant must clearly state this to WorkplaceNL. If the rates differ between multiple business activities, WorkplaceNL will apply a single Newfoundland Industrial Classification Code (NIC Code) to the applicant's earnings, based on the business activity with the higher rate.

The following examples illustrate situations where an individual may be involved in multiple business activities:

- If a person is a proprietor of a firm and also an active director of an incorporated company, that individual has compulsory coverage for their activities in the business of the incorporated company. However, the individual must purchase OPC in order to have coverage for activities in the business of the proprietorship.
- If the individual has OPC as a proprietor, it is only in effect while the person is operating that proprietorship, and may not be extended to any other business or activity outside of the operations of that proprietorship.

Coverage for Commercial Fishers in the Off-season

Commercial fishers are not covered under the Act when engaged in off-season pursuits. For coverage during the off-season, commercial fishers may apply for optional personal coverage. Please refer to Policy CO-01, Coverage for Commercial Fishers and Procedure 404.00, The Fishing Industry.

103.03 Householder Coverage

Individuals performing work in or around the residence of a householder are not covered under the Act, as per Section 4(b) of the Workplace Health, Safety and Compensation Administrative Regulations. However, the householder may voluntarily apply for and obtain householder coverage in accordance with the terms and conditions of WorkplaceNL. Householder coverage is an optional coverage that can be applied for by a private individual when hiring other individuals to do work in or around the residence of the householder. Examples of types of work undertaken where householder coverage may be applicable can include, but are not limited to: child care services, house cleaning, home care and renovations.

Applicants must complete a Householder Coverage application form (available on www.workplacenl.ca) in full and submit it with the appropriate payment to WorkplaceNL.

Terms of Coverage

Terms and conditions are the same as for OPC, with the following two exceptions:

1. The applicant is the homeowner and coverage is only extended for the worker(s) listed on the Householder Coverage application form. This differs from OPC, which extends coverage to the applicant only; and
2. Householder coverage automatically expires on December 31 of each year. A renewal form will not be sent to the individual prior to expiration. If the individual would like to renew the coverage beyond the expiry date, they must complete a new Householder Coverage application form and submit it with the appropriate payment to WorkplaceNL.
